

MANIAC'S DEED.

Nearly an Entire Family Wiped Out in Missouri.

Insane Man Kills His Mother, Sister, Brother and Then Suicides.

The Dead Witnessed by a Sister at a Window when She Had Escaped—The Murderer, Before Killing Himself, Fires the House.

WELLVILLE, Mo., Nov. 20.—This little village was the scene of a horrible quadruple murder early Monday morning, which wiped out nearly an entire family. Thomas Portier, with his mother, two sisters and brother, occupied a small house half a mile east of the business portion of the village. The family were Bohemians, and were in amiable circumstances.

Sunday afternoon Thomas was discovered acting strangely, and gave indications that his mind was deranged. He labored under hallucinations, and his neck was broken, and insisted that a physician be summoned. His relatives endeavored to convince him of his error, and tried to persuade him to go to bed. He refused to lie down, and insisted on remaining sitting up all night. Late Sunday night, however, he retired, leaving Thomas sitting in a rocking chair.

At 3 o'clock the sister was awakened by the agonizing screams of her mother. When she emerged from her bedroom she found her mother lying on the floor, while Thomas stood over her, brandishing an ax. The door was covered with blood, and from an adjoining room her other brother could be heard moaning in the agony of death. The girl ran through the house, and finding all the doors locked opened a window and jumped to the ground. She remained at the window, and as Thomas made no attempt to follow her, she stood and watched him at his murderous work.

The maniac seized a can of oil, and after pouring it over the floor and furniture set it on fire. He then drew a butcher knife across his throat and, by the side of his mother, lay dead. The poor girl attempted to extinguish the flames, but they spread so quickly that in less than ten minutes the house was a mass of fire.

The screams of the girl awakened the neighbors, and they rushed to the scene, but the flames had already finished the work which the maniac had commenced.

When the blazing timbers had been controlled sufficiently to allow search of the ruined house, four bodies were found, blackened and charred in the ruins. They were those of Mrs. Portier, her youngest daughter and her sons, James and Thomas.

Investigation showed that the mother, daughter and son James had been horribly mutilated by an ax. It was probably Thomas' intention to kill his sister Mary, also, but her life was saved by the screams of her mother. Her mother had been in bed for the past twelve years and had been confined to her bed during that time. No theory is advanced for the sudden fit of insanity which overcame the young man.

NAVAL REORGANIZATION.

The Joint Committee of the Two Houses Has a Problem to Solve.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Senator Butler, who is chairman of the joint committee of the two houses of congress on the personnel of the navy, is making an effort to get the committee together at an early day for the purpose of getting a bill in shape to be presented at the beginning of the next session. It is possible, which will solve the vexed problem of navy reorganization. This question was under consideration by the joint committee during a great deal of the time of the last session, and a large mass of testimony given by experts was taken, but it would appear that very little progress was made toward securing the legislation desired. The committee went so far in its work, however, to discover that the task which has been set it is a very difficult one, and still a task which it is very necessary should be performed. The navy is at present suffering from a lack of personnel. Senator Butler's committee is expected to find out what went out the surplus without doing injury to the service.

The tendency of a navy organized on the plan of ours is to grow top-heavy at all times and this tendency was accentuated by the war. The navy of today which entered the national academy during the war. The officers who were thus created have proved too numerous for times of peace, and the time is now at hand when they are reaching the higher ranks the glut is beginning to be seriously felt. During the war Secretary Herbert went before the committee and submitted his ideas by giving his testimony. It is to be expected that the committee does not appear to have been pleased with all the features of the bill and consequently failed to report it to the full committee on either house. Representative Meyer, who is a member of the joint committee, is also the author of a bill of some extent that comprehensive terms, but it does not seem to have received the approval of other members of the committee.

STRIKE COMMISSION

Likely to Be Recommended in President Cleveland's Message.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Considerable attention is being given to the stand which the president will take in his message to congress, regarding the current strikes. The president is now being urged by a commission to investigate the occurrence, the report which his members have submitted to him, and the secretary of labor has been passed upon his action by the Atchafalaya, Illinois, will all afford a pretext for referring to this important subject.

It is expected that the president will recommend the appointment of a permanent commission.

This has always been a favorite idea with him, and as long ago as 1886, in a message to congress relative to the miners' strike, he recommended voluntary arbitration as the best means of settling disputes.

Mr. Cleveland also argued in that message that a permanent commission would, by its very existence, prevent strikes, would have ample power to enforce its decisions, and it could be easily transferred to the bureau of labor by the addition of two commissioners. It is thought that in his approaching message he will reiterate the views which he expressed eight years ago, in which case legislation by the present congress is not unlikely.

ENTOMBED.

Thousands Assembled at the Funeral of the Czar.

All the European Royalties Represented at the Solemnities.

Which Lasted Five Hours—Funeral Times in St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 20.—The entombment of the remains of the late Czar Alexander III. took place Monday in the cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul. A thick fog enveloped the city, but the populace was as early as the earliest possible hour and at the same time the troops detailed to take part in the funeral ceremonies commenced moving to their positions assigned to them. The cathedral was packed with distinguished persons including representatives of all the imperial and royal families of Europe. The funeral services were conducted by the metropolitan of St. Petersburg and the metropolitan of Moscow. The former conducted the czar to his place near the coffin, which reposed in state in the center of the cathedral. The czar and grand dukes and the members of the royal families present took up positions on the right of the coffin, and the members of the imperial family were grouped behind the bier. On the left were the foreign ambassadors and ministers of state, while groups of eunuchs in different parts of the cathedral were countless delegations from Russian cities and elsewhere, including the numerous delegations from France. The funeral services began at 10:30 a. m. and lasted until about 4 o'clock. Over thirty members of the royal families, the czar's staff, and the czar's suite, were present. After the long service, the czar and the czar's suite present took a last farewell of the remains of Alexander III. The czar then laid the imperial mantle over the body of his father and the coffin was carried by the czar and certain of the princes to its tomb.

Enormous crowds of people gathered on both sides of the Neva long before the ceremony commenced. The opening ceremony was announced by three cannon shots from the fortress. The czar, the imperial family and the czar's staff, mounted the stairs received at the door of the cathedral by the metropolitan of St. Petersburg and by all the members of the holy order bearing crosses and holy water. The imperial party formed a solemn procession, which marched up the aisle until the czar and the other mourners reached their appointed places. The funeral service then commenced and during its progress tears were handed to the mourners. The high priest, with a burning torch, lighted the czar's taper and afterward did the same with those held by the members of the imperial family, after which the priest lighted the tapers of all the other mourners according to rank.

The clouds of incense, followed by the solemn chanting of the priests, gave the most weird effect to the whole scene. At the conclusion of the funeral services the members of the imperial family paid their last respects to the dead czar, kissing the lion lying on his breast. The czar's staff, the czar's suite, and the czar's family, who were terrified by the sight of the coffin, disappeared from view the loud booming of cannon and the salvoes fired by platoons of infantry from the adjoining fortress reverberated through the church, mingling with the words of the burial service, and the lowering of the mourning flag by high civil officers of the government.
